John Bridger,
i2i Geography teacher:

What were your considerations when choosing a teacher training provider?

The lead school's professional reputation, how many other schools were included in its partnership, and whether it provided a place for my chosen subject.

How did the i2i Programme match your needs?

Rather than undertaking a traditional PGCE I was looking for a programme where the majority of the training was school-based. I wanted to immerse myself in a school environment and spend most of the training year in that one school; helping me to develop relationships with students and staff, and an understanding of that particular school's practices and routines.

Applying to our programme:

We welcome potential applicants to visit us for the School Experience Programme (contact Tammy Cresswell for details)

Apply through UCAS and look for Weydon School or Train to teach@ Surrey & Hants.

How supported did you feel during the lead up to application and the application process?

Regular contact from the course administrator was both informative and reassuring and made me feel welcomed as an applicant.

What would you recommend about the programme now that you have started it?

The support from the staff that run the training has been very comforting, similarly having a strong one-to-one relationship with my in-school mentor has been a massive help, knowing that he is there to guide me along my training. As well as having regular contact with other trainees, to be able to share experiences with them.
